

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Perspectives on Post-War Reconstruction	4
1.1.1	A Vision for Reconstruction	9
1.2	Contemporary Literature on Russia's Approach to Reconstruction	11
1.3	Intervention Drivers in Russian Policy	14
1.4	Reconstruction Drivers	18
1.5	Securitisisation and Stabilisation	19
1.6	A Roadmap Through the Book	21
	References	23
2	Moscow's Response to Post-War Recovery in the Aftermath of WWII	29
2.1	The Post-WWII Domestic Reconstruction Context	29
2.2	The USSR Approach to the Reconstruction of Eastern Europe	34
2.3	The Marshall Plan	36
2.4	Moscow's Response to the Marshall Plan: The Establishment of the CMEA	39
2.5	After Stalin Until the Collapse of the USSR	43
2.6	Education	46
2.7	Military Aid	50
2.8	Conclusion	54
	References	56

3	Russia's Unique Approach as a (Re)Emerging Donor	61
3.1	Russia as a Non-traditional Donor	63
3.2	The Evolution of Russian Aid	65
3.3	Russia's Unique Path to Intervention	71
3.3.1	Selective Respect for Sovereignty in Intervention Decisions	72
3.3.2	Distancing Its Policy From Western Humanitarian Liberalism	73
3.3.3	Donorship Without Interference in Domestic Affairs	74
3.3.4	Security and Stability First	74
3.4	Coercive Diplomacy	75
3.5	Humanitarian and Developmental Aid as a Political Tool	76
3.6	Conclusion	78
	References	79
4	Intervention and Reconstruction in the Caucasus: The Cases of Chechnya, Abkhazia, and South Ossetia	83
4.1	Regional Context	83
4.2	The Roots of Chechen Separatist Movements	84
4.3	The Build-Up to Conflict in the Twentieth Century	85
4.3.1	Leading up to the First Chechen War	85
4.3.2	Russian Participation in the Georgian Civil War of 1991–1993	87
4.4	The Wars	90
4.4.1	The Outbreak of the First Chechen War	90
4.4.2	The Second Chechen War	92
4.4.3	The Russo-Georgian War of 2008	93
4.5	Moscow's Domestic Response to the Impact of the Chechen Wars	95
4.5.1	Economic Aid	95
4.5.2	Educational and Cultural Recovery	100
4.5.3	Results	102
4.6	Reconstruction in Post-Conflict Abkhazia and South Ossetia	105
4.6.1	Abkhazia	105
4.6.2	South Ossetia	107
4.7	Conclusion	110
	References	113

5	Intervention and Reconstruction in Syria	121
5.1	Introduction	121
5.1.1	Background of the Syrian Civil War	122
5.2	Russian Interests and Motivations in Syria	123
5.3	Russia's Military Intervention	126
5.4	Moscow as a Conflict Mediator	130
5.5	Reconstruction Efforts and Limitations	132
5.6	Conclusion	137
	References	138
6	Ukraine: The Context, the Case of Crimea, and Moscow's Commitments to Annexed Territories	145
6.1	Introduction	145
6.2	Root Causes of Russian Encroachment on Ukrainian Territory	148
6.2.1	The Maidan Revolution	150
6.3	The Situation in the Donbas	153
6.3.1	Peace Agreements: Minsk Protocol and Minsk II	153
6.3.2	After the Minsk Agreements	155
6.4	Nationalist Concepts Used to Justify War	156
6.5	Investments and Development in Crimea	158
6.6	Emerging Commitments and Strategies Towards Reconstruction in 2022	163
6.7	Conclusion	168
	References	170
7	Conclusion	177
7.1	The Pillars of Russia's Post-Conflict Reconstruction Policy	178
7.1.1	Moscow's Own Path: Non-interference and Sovereignty	178
7.1.2	Coercive Diplomacy	180
7.1.3	Stabilisation	182
7.1.4	A Loyal, Strong State	183
7.1.5	Humanitarian and Development Aid as Tools	184
7.1.6	Economic Integration and Dependency	185
7.1.7	Education	187

7.2	Forecast	188
7.3	Recommendations	191
7.3.1	Considerations for Kyiv and the West	191
7.3.2	Considerations for the Russian Annexed Regions in the Donbas and Eastern Ukraine	194
	References	196
Index		199