

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments · vii

	Introduction	1
CHAPTER 1	What She Liked and Loved	12
	The Theater	14
	Painting	21
	Music	27
	Poetry	35
	Nature	45
	Reading	50
	Love and Friendship	53
	Concluding Reflections	62
CHAPTER 2	Who Are We? What Are We Made Of?	65
	The Unity of Humanity	65
	Slavery	69
	Human Nature	73
	The Imagination	81
	Memory	91
	Sensory Experience and the Association of Ideas	92
	Reason	95
	Mind, Body, and Soul	100
	The Will	103
	The Passions, the Appetites, and Emotions	105
	Concluding Reflections	108

[ vi ] CONTENTS

CHAPTER 3	What Went Wrong? The World as It Was	112
	Evil and Perfection	114
	Writing the History of Civilization	122
	The State of Nature and First Societies	126
	Rank and Womanhood	134
	Burke's Reflections	142
	Burke, Wollstonecraft, Appearing and Being	146
	Dependence	148
	The Many Consequences of Inheritance	153
	Property and Appearance	155
	Idleness	160
	Inequality or Vanity?	162
	Concluding Reflections	164
CHAPTER 4	What She Wished and Wanted	166
	Writing for Society as It Is and for Society as It Ought to Be	166
	A New Idea of Woman, but Also of Man	167
	The Declaration of the Rights of Woman, Patriotism, and the Progress of Civilization	174
	The Limits of Education	178
	The Enlightened World of the Future	184
	Commerce and the Division of Labor	185
	Rank and Luxury	188
	Effeminacy and Vanity	191
	The Virtues	193
	Marriage, Sex, and Friendship	197
	In Sum	203
	The World to Come	205
CHAPTER 5	A Life Unfinished	209

Bibliography · 213

Index · 221